Osan

Osan City is located in southwestern Gyeonggi Province, about 60 kilometers from Seoul.
On January 1, 1989, Osan-eup, which was under the control of Hwaseong County, was promoted to Osan City, and has made rapid strides since then, and is now a middle-aged city with a population of about 220,000. Osan is a well-balanced city with all areas of social, economic, cultural, educational and welfare development, and has a strong image as a "stable and livable" failure. In addition, the modifier "natural" is also indispensable. To the northwest, it is a hill of Doksan Mountain (208m), Yangsangbong Peak (181m), and Yeo San (159m) respectively, and to the southwest Osancheon Stream, which flows southward toward Jinyi Stream in Pyeongtaek, is located in a small basin and a plain, so you can enjoy green spaces anywhere in Osan.
